The original Liszt plaque was dedicated 77 years ago in 1934, four years before the Garden was dedicated.

Ferenc (Franz) Liszt (1811–1886) was said by his peers to have been the most technically advanced pianist of his age and perhaps even the greatest pianist of all time. A popular performer, he was the first to give solo piano recitals in the modern sense of the word. Women so admired him they threw various garments, such as hankies and gloves, to him while he performed!
